How the Disaster Occurred.

QUEBEC, May 8.—The following is the official report of the third officer of the State of Florida:

We left New York on the 12th of April, with about 167 passengers and crew, and a full general cargo. All went well until the 18th, when, at 11:30, we came in collision with bark Foenicia, Captain Hettburn. Both ships went down almost instantly, and out of the passengers and crew only forty-four, including the stewardess, managed to escape in the boats, and out of the bark's crew of fifteen, only the captain and two seamen were saved. The next morning the bark was observed bottom up. The survivors, after being thirty-five hours in the boats, without food or water, were rescued by the Norwegian bark Therese, of Christiansia, from flat port, bound to Quebec. On the 22nd, twenty-four of them were transferred on board the ship Louisa, of and from Cardiff, for Quebec, where they remained until the 5th of May, when they were taken on board of the Titania. It is believed that 135 lives were lost.

JAMES BENNETT, of London, Ontario, a passenger on the Florida, says that just before a boat was lowered some one cut the falls too soon and the boat emptied all her passengers into the sea. He and three others climbed on the keel and sat there all night. Underneath the boat were a number of former companions, all of whom were found dead the next morning. The small number of passengers saved he attributed to the rapidity with which the Florida went down and to the fact that the captain, who, apparently not realizing the position of affairs, made no endeavor to get them into boats. Though the surviving officers are very reticent as to the responsibility for the accident the impression seems to be that the steamship is to blame. The men on the boat's keel were picked up next morning by former companions in other boats. They saw the bark upside down which collided with them. The boats with the survivors kept together, and on Saturday morning sighted a sail, but could not haul the vessel. They were picked up the next day by the Therese.

The stories of the various survivors agree in the main features, the time occupied by the disaster being of such short duration that there was no chance for observation.

The Methodists.

PHILADELPHIA, May 8.—The general conference of the Methodist church reassembled this morning with Bishop Hunt in the chair. Mr. Taylor, of Indiana, conducted the devotional exercises. Thursday, May 15, at 10 o'clock, was the time chosen for the election of bishops. Memorial services for deceased members will be held Thursday morning next.

REV. DR. KING, of New York, offered a resolution, which was referred to the committee on the state of the church, in which they were instructed to consider the matter of protection against the assaults of Romanism or civil and religious liberty in the different states.

Steak a Rock.

PORTLAND, Me., May 8.—The steamer The City of Rockland, plying between Rockland and St. John, N. B., struck on a grindstone ledge, Owls Head, this morning. The steamer left Portland last night, with seventy passengers and a two-thirds cargo. The night was clear. As the day was breaking, the first pilot sighted a striped buoy or portbow, between Sheep and Fisherman's Islands, and in a few minutes the steamer struck amidships and stuck fast. The pumps were at once started, the distress colors set and the boats cleared. Help was sent them, and the passengers and crew were rescued.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 8.—The cotton crop report for the Memphis district, embracing West Tennessee, Missouri, Mississippi, North Arkansas and North Alabama, to be published to-morrow by Hill, Fontaine & Co., will say there will be a decreased acreage planted in cotton in this district of 1 per cent, as compared with last year. The fall from position broke the strap, and he fell to the ground, where he was found.

The Excitement Increasing.

NEW YORK, May 8.—The excitement by the failures of the Marine National bank and Grant & Ward has greatly moderated. Grant & Ward's statement, anticipated with interest, is expected today.
